ONLINE EDUCATION - An Alternative in the Time of Covid 19 Crisis

The covid-19 pandemic has triggered new ways of learning. This pandemic situation challenged the education system across the world and as a result online mode of education has become a viable alternative for pursuing education. Digital learning has emerged as a necessary resource for students all over the world.

Considering the need of Online education many organizations are trying to assist the online platforms and apps. For many educational institutes, this is an entirely new way of education that they have had to adopt. Advanced online education, once considered a niche area is now becoming a much more appealing option for schools and colleges around the world.

In the past few months the demand for online learning has risen significantly and it will continue to do so in the future. Online learning is now applicable not just to learn academics but it also extends to learning extracurricular activities for students as well.

Research suggests that online learning has been shown to increase retention of information and take less time. It enables the students to access specialized courses that may not be available in offline or local institutions.

Poor internet access is a major challenge in online education especially the students residing in remote areas. Due to financial constraints students are devoid of electronic gadgets. Even though some students have these facilities they face the problem of unavailability of physical space. However online education allows students to participate in high quality learning situations and can participate in classes from anywhere in the world.

In order for an online education programme to be successful, curriculum, the facilitator, the technology and the students must be carefully considered and balanced in order to take full advantage of the strengths of this programme and at the same time avoid pitfalls that could result from its weaknesses.
