COUNSELLING

Through counselling, students can work with emotion, cognition and interpersonal relationships in ways that help them manage their emotions and see things from a different perspective. In other words, the student doesn't have to go through trauma or a huge life event to benefit from counseling.

Counselling can help you become a better person and grow in new ways. It's additional input that can spark your development both personally and professionally. In counselling, you can work on developing the traits and behaviours that you aspire to have.
